March Is Ushered in by Warmest Weather of Year

March comes in like a lamb, it will go out like a lion. That's the old saying of the weather-wise—or is it otherwise? At any rate, March came in rather quietly during Tuesday night. It did look a bit cloudy early in the evening, but along about 11 p. m. the skies cleared and beautiful moonlight was the result.

L. C. Mead, the seer, predicting Janesville's weather way back in last October, said that moderation would come toward the end of February, following a severe cold spell and that by Mar. 2, it would be springlike.

The temperature at the thermometer of the Janesville Electric company at 1:30 p. m. Thursday stood at 45 degrees. This is the highest it has been this year. At 7 a. m. Thursday, the reading was just barely above freezing at 32 degrees.

Mr. Mead said the warm weather would bring rain on Mar. 2. The official government prediction, Thursday, was unsettled weather and warmer.

So far as the adage about the lamb and the lion, Mead says that "much rain is likely from the 23rd of March to April 1."

LOVELACE BOOZE CASE IS DROPPED

Rundell, Beloit, said Friday, upon his return from New Digings, Wis., where he had gone to interview a Beloit man named Steve Lovelace, who is being held to substantiate his charges that Lovelace sold him liquor. ### Berlin Payment Would Take Care of Yankee Bill

Paris—Bellet that the United States could be reimbursed easily for the cost of its Rhine army, if Germany would pay considerable sums regularly on the reparations account, was expressed at Thursday's conference between Eliot Wadsworth, assistant secretary of the treasury, and the financial representatives of the allied governments.

SABOTAGE BRINGS SHARP PENALTIES BY FRENCH EDICT

 have been hampered by strikes and the menace of a food shortage. The railway administration is empowered to hire as many men as are needed and most of these will be imported from Belgium and France. Several hundred Germans, the French official asserts have refused work. General Degoutte has ordered the collection of all tobacco and spirits sold in the Ruhr and Rhineland. Persons who refuse to pay his tax will be arrested and their places of business will be closed.

FURTHER DISORDERS FEAR IN FRENCH

Washington, March 1.—Apprehension that the atmosphere of "high tension" prevailing among the German population in the occupied Ruhr district may in the near future lead to explosions of disorder was expressed in a formal statement issued last night by the German embassy. Should the present, "already severely tried" itself be led to acts of desperation," the statement said, the German government will not be in a position to guarantee the maintenance of peace and order in the occupied territory. This condition arises, it was said, from the "paralytic" of the French of the German official apparatus in the Ruhr and the order, disbanding the German security police of the urban and rural districts of Essen and the reported disarming of the security police at other areas.

"SHARLIE" FACES BIG CUSTARD PIE DUEL

Count now has no claim upon her and that she is free to marry whom she pleases. The count can't read that kind of English at all. And Charlie has said nothing.

 But there's a rumor afloat concerning the comic and that is that he's practicing over time with his seven league boots and his trusty cane these days.

But Charlie has all the advantage now and will have it if the count wastes the more or less good coin of the Polish realm on a trip to America to challenge Charlie to mortal combat. By all the recognized rules of dueling the challengee has the privilege of naming the weapons.

That being the case, Charlie probably will choose custard pies at 40 paces and who believes, that the count—by-the-way that he must be will be able to withstand a barrage of custard pies laid down as only Chaplain can do it? Neither do we.

BOURKE COCHRAN.

Tammany lost the man who once was known as its orator of the silver tongue, when William Bourke Cochran died. Tammany has always had some one in the organization who stood forth as the voice of the wigwam and usually he has been a man of great national importance and capable in all ways. Cochran, rising from the usual surroundings we so well know of the New York boy brought up in the old east side districts, was given a training in law that fitted him for the task as spokesman. Yet he never became a national figure until at the democratic convention in Chicago in 1892, he made the speech nominating David B. Hill against Grover Cleveland. After a long continuous afternoon and night session, the convention in great confusion in the old wigwam on the lake front, packed with 20,000 people, nominating speeches were made for Cleveland, just before midnight. It was near two o'clock in the morning when Cochran, after repeated attempts on the part of the delegation to adjourn the convention had failed, took the platform. He was suffering from a carbuncle on the leg. No one who was there will ever forget that moment. Tammany suddenly became silent and the turbulence of a mob changed to the orderly solemnity of a great occasion. Facing a hostile convention, his back to the wall, knowing full well that Cleveland would be nominated on the first ballot, Bourke Cochran became in that hour's exhibition of masterly invective, pleading and argument, the great outstanding figure of the convention.

IN THE NAME OF FRIENDSHIP.

In naming Harry New, of Indiana for postmaster general in his cabinet the president has exercised a right which no one will dispute—the selection of his own official family. That family must naturally be in harmony with the president. Senator New has been a close personal friend and supporter of President Harding, long before the Ohio senator rose to the presidency. New grew up on his father's newspaper, the old Indianapolis Journal, and John C. New, the father, was for years a wheelhorse in the republican politics of Indiana. Harding and New were both newspaper men before they were senators. They had a common bond. Before New was a "lame duck" and had been defeated for renomination to the senate he was offered a place in the cabinet but refused. In the face of threats that this appointment to the cabinet would injure him in Indiana, Mr. Harding has refused to be dictated by expediency and has stuck to his friend. In these days when men sacrifice everything for political preferment the attitude of the president is refreshing. "Politics is not friendship; it is power," said Horace Greeley.

Have you been to the Midwinter exposition?

Chicago has nominated a republican candidate for mayor who was originally selected by a committee of citizens to oppose William Hale Thompson. But William refused to make the run and receive the thrashing which certainly awaits him. Instead, another Thompson candidate was put up and was defeated. Tuesday. An analysis of the vote will show however, that the democratic candidate, who was unopposed, will, if the Thompson faction so determines, have much the best chance of being elected in April.

No sooner does the legislature get rid of one freak when another arrives. The shoe cobbler bill was placed in the garbage can and here arrives a bill making it impossible to get a hot roll for breakfast. Next we will be told how much sugar to put in the apple sauce.

The conviction of Stewart of the land company which operated under his name, on 16 indictments

Washington.—In all of the large and sparsely populated states of New Mexico, there are but six grizzly bears left alive—and the government of the United States is camped on their trails.

At least, six is the grizzly population of New Mexico according to the census taken by officers of the biological survey, and there is reason to believe that the census is fairly accurate. The survey has tabulated lists of the numbers of all predatory animals in the state, just as the census bureau has of the people. It is not out of the ordinary to find a grizzly bear and a coyote are treated as citizens of the country. When they go into thievery they are punished by the steel trap, executed, or perhaps condemned to serve a life term in some zoo. If they behave themselves they are often let alone. The survey is sparing the black bear whenever it can. Many black bears do no harm, and their right to live is recognized. Even coyotes are not hunted to the last. Coyotes are necessary to keep down the number of rabbits. Any coyote who sticks to his proper business of killing and eating jack rabbits is fairly safe.

But the grizzly has been condemned to extermination, except in a few national parks. There simply is no room for both man and the grizzly on this continent. A grizzly will kill cattle, sheep and horses. It will not be good and he serves no economic purpose, except in a noble and interesting creature, but except in parks and zoos, his name is Dennis, or it probably will be in a few years. The last of the grizzlies show great tenacity in clinging to their useless lives. These six which remain in the New Mexico Rockies have been known to the survey for a long time. It is known that some of the trappers have put names for them in traps, and they are careful about putting their feet in traps, they stick to the high mountains and the tall timber, and they are at once shy and wise.

Once a government hunter came upon two of these grizzlies in the Taos mountains. He had been looking for them for months. Here was his chance. He drew careful bead and shot at them. The grizzlies both started in his direction. He fired a little nervous that morning anyway, and perhaps the sight of two bears ambling in his direction made him more so. Anyway, he operated his gun in such a hurry that a cartridge got stuck in the magazine. The bears kept on coming.

Now there is much dispute among scientists and hunters as to whether the grizzly really is a savage animal. Some contend that he will attack a man without provocation when in a bad mood. Others assert that he never attacks, even when wounded, if it is possible to retreat. They say that when he runs toward the hunter he is doing so merely because he is confused and excited and doesn't know where the hunter is.

This man had a fine chance to stay and see whether grizzlies really bite or whether they were merely confused and excited. But he passed it up. He couldn't shoot any more anyway, and he had other things to attend to, so he decided to go in the same direction the grizzlies were going. He did this so energetically that he left them behind and never did see them again. They are still up in the mountains living on good beef. But of course, it is only a matter of time until the government will get them.

When it comes to getting bears, the survey has found that the man for the work is a good old-fashioned bear hunter, who doesn't know that a scientific name for the grizzly is Ursus horribilis. He does know a lot of killing bears. In New Mexico the survey recently lost one of its most efficient and remarkable bear hunters. He became so famous that he retired from the trapping business to guide tourists around the country and tell them yarns.

The name of this man is Ben Lilly and he is nearly 80 years old, but active and healthy. He is a perfect survivor of the pioneer age in America—a man of exactly the same type as Daniel Boone and Davy Crockett. Civilization has never bothered him because he has kept away from it. Until a year or so ago he never deigned to make use of such an effete contraption as a railroad. Neither does he care for pack animals. When he had to come from Taos to Albuquerque to make a report he walked the whole distance of nearly 200 miles, carrying his bedding and cooking outfit on his back.

When he went hunting he traveled the same way. His whole household was on his back, so that he was prepared to stay on the trail of a bear for a month if necessary. It is said that in a year he killed 4,000 bears and mountain lions. There was only one thing that impaired his efficiency and that was his old-fashioned regard for the Sabbath. He would on no account hunt on Sunday. If he was on the trail of a bear and about to catch it at midnight on Saturday, he quit until Monday. He never smokes, drinks or chews and is afraid of nothing but hell, in which he firmly believes.

A sharp contrast to old Ben Lilly is Eddy Anderson, one of the best government wolf trappers in the southwest. Eddy used to be a book-keeper in Chicago. After 10 years of professional endeavor he had accumulated nothing except a small colony of tubercle bacilli in his left lung. He went to New Mexico and set out to become a trapper. He would follow a lamp-killing coyote, with the same painstaking care that he gave to the pursuit of tuberculosis. He caught a record-breaking number of wolves and recovered his health while doing it.

The government men have found that in handling the predatory animal problem they have not only a resident, but also an immigrant population to deal with. Thus there is a steady immigration of coyotes across the Mexican border as fast as the 100 per cent American coyotes are killed out, these "greaser" coyotes come to take their places. Then they have to be Americanized with traps and guns. Unless there is cooperation from the Mexicans it looks as if the coyote problem would take a long time to solve.

The work of the survey is contributing much toward making the human population better acquainted with that of the lower animals. If you crave hunting a bear in New Mexico, now, you can go to the survey and they will give you, so to speak, the name and address of a bear that needs killing, and perhaps some information as to his personal habits and disposition. Moreover, the survey is always bringing young wild animals to town, telling that the people can look at them and they can look at the people.

The Last of the Grizzlies

By FREDERIC J. HASKIN

Washington.—In all of the large and sparsely populated states of New Mexico, there are but six grizzly bears left alive—and the government of the United States is camped on their trails.

At least, six is the grizzly population of New Mexico according to the census taken by officers of the biological survey, and there is reason to believe that the census is fairly accurate. The survey has tabulated lists of the numbers of all predatory animals in the state, just as the census bureau has of the people. It is not out of the ordinary to find a grizzly bear and a coyote are treated as citizens of the country. When they go into thievery they are punished by the steel trap, executed, or perhaps condemned to serve a life term in some zoo. If they behave themselves they are often let alone. The survey is sparing the black bear whenever it can. Many black bears do no harm, and their right to live is recognized. Even coyotes are not hunted to the last. Coyotes are necessary to keep down the number of rabbits. Any coyote who sticks to his proper business of killing and eating jack rabbits is fairly safe.

But the grizzly has been condemned to extermination, except in a few national parks. There simply is no room for both man and the grizzly on this continent. A grizzly will kill cattle, sheep and horses. It will not be good and he serves no economic purpose, except in a noble and interesting creature, but except in parks and zoos, his name is Dennis, or it probably will be in a few years. The last of the grizzlies show great tenacity in clinging to their useless lives. These six which remain in the New Mexico Rockies have been known to the survey for a long time. It is known that some of the trappers have put names for them in traps, and they are careful about putting their feet in traps, they stick to the high mountains and the tall timber, and they are at once shy and wise.

THE MORTGAGE AND THE MAN.
This is the tale of a mortgage, and a dead man and his son.
A father who left to his only child a duty that must be done.
And the neighbors said as they gathered round
In the neighbors' curious way.
"Too bad, too bad, that he left his boy so heavy
A debt to pay."

Day by day through the years that came the mortgage held him fast.
Straight and true to his task he went, and he
And his arm grew strong and his eye kept bright,
And although he never knew,
The thing that fashioned a man of him was the task he had to do.

Honor and fortune crowned his brow till the day
he came to die.
But he said: "My boy shall never work against such odds as I."
I have plodded his years. I have made them safe. I have paid his journey through.
And the boy looked out on a world wherein there was nothing for him to do.

His arms grew soft and his eyes went dull and his cheeks turned ashy pale.
For strength which isn't employed by day with idleness grows stale.
"He is not the man that his father was," the neighbors said.
"And better for him: had he been left to work for his meat and bread."

Oh, the man dies out and the clan departs and the fable grows the son.
When they came at last to the dreadful day when all of the work is done.
For manhood dies on the road of ease where the world is blue.
And each of us needs, if we shall grow strong,
some difficult thing to do.

PULLED THE WRONG LEG.
Weighed of the struggle to meet the lowering purchasing power, a German youth decides to hang himself, and a woman youth to a lamp-post, swings himself into space.
Discovering him hanging from the post, a wayfarer cut the rope in time to save the life of the youth.
The youth, however, was not so lucky.
In his fall from the lamp-post he youth had broken his leg and he was sure he would be lame for the balance of his life.
Having no objection to breaking his neck through hanging, he was not, however, to breaking his leg and going through a life of pain.
Having his lame leg extended by proper treatment, he is upon the nifty device of pulling that of his benefactor.

DID YOU EVER SEE—

A bootblack who doesn't look at your feet as you walk by?

A hotel lamp shop that doesn't resemble a crack in the plate?

An ungracious barman?

A soft-filling barber?

A barber who will let you off with a shave and a haircut?

A judge who will let you off with a smile and a reprimand?

A tinsmith who fools anybody except the wearers?

A self-effacing book agent?

A self-satisfied undertaking establishment?

A very wealthy man in this country has just issued a statement deploring the scramble for money just now. It must be somebody who has been trying to get some of it.

Among the evils that should be abolished is the first of the month.

Lord Robert Cecil, said to be England's strongest champion of the League of Nations, is to visit America in March according to dispatches from London. American friends in England and the United States and Canada have long urged Lord Robert to make the trip but he has been too busy with his first visit across the Atlantic.

It is expected that he will speak at several of the large cities on international affairs but he himself denies that his trip will be in any way a mission. His friends believe that he might be induced to speak in the interest of the League if America shows any desire to hear him.

The name that he will succeed Foreign Secretary Curzon still persists and although he says his contemplated trip to America shows that he has no idea of stepping into the shoes of Curzon, it would be a simple matter to cancel the trip or to take it as a preliminary to his new office.

The noted Britisher was born September 14, 1854. His father was the third Marquis of Salisbury. He was educated at Eton and Oxford and married Lady Eleanor Lambton, daughter of the second Earl of Durham, in 1889.

Lord Robert began his career as secretary to his father. He was elected to the House of Commons in 1891 and entered parliament from the East Yorkshire district in 1906. He was named parliamentary under-secretary for foreign affairs in 1915. Three years later he became assistant secretary of state for foreign affairs.

After two years during the war he was minister of blockade.

CLEAN SOURCES OF INFECTION

One may have a nose, throat, stomach or intestine swarming with countless numbers of germs, both the harmless kind and the disease-producing kind, yet suffer no disease. At least one of every five adults harbors in his nose or throat virulent pneumococci, the germs which cause pneumonia, bronchitis and many sore throats and simple colds. So that when we think of infection it is not enough to conceive disease germs in the throat or nose or other cavity of the body for one may harbor disease germs in such situations without suffering illness.

Infection occurs only when the germs invade the tissues by fighting their way through the lining of the nose or throat or other cavity. An individual in good health is endowed with more or less natural or acquired immunity to infectious disease; we commonly say he has "good resistance," the cells composing his mucous membranes usually keep the pesky germs out, and the movable, wandering, and simple colds, who (pus) corpuscles of his blood devour and digest any germs that do succeed in passing the mucous membrane barrier.

Not until these defenses are broken down and the germs find their way into the tissues does disease gain entrance into the system. When that happens (not before) the victim comes down with the disease. He is then infected. One may be a "carrier" of the germs of typhoid fever or diphtheria or pneumonia or meningitis without himself being sick. The germs he carries may, however, be virulent enough to cause an outbreak or epidemic or an occasional case of the disease in persons with whom he comes in contact. This is a rather uncomfortable thought; it may remind of a person with just a little knowledge in germs with whom modern sanitary experience proves that such "carriers" are responsible for outbreaks of disease only too often. I should not dwell on this, all were it not for the fact that I believe, as I shall try to explain shortly, that by the routine application of certain simple sanitary precautions to the disease, the ger

SYNOPSIS OF PRECEDING CHAPTERS.

Pandora Nicholson was a girl who never found anything to say to them. As a result, she was an outcast, even among her own people. She lives, as a poor relation, with her Aunt Maude and Uncle Peter and their very popular daughter, Gladys. All of them tell her so often that she is hopelessly stupid that she believes it.

She does make one friend in the village, Morton Newberry. Soaringly, he is kind to her, she is passionately grateful, thinks she is in love with him. She wants Morton and goes off and marries him, leaving Pandora heartbroken. Soon after, Gladys suddenly decides to send for her to look after her son, Frankie.

Frankie, in the city among kinder people, Pandora begins to find herself before only because she was superior, not inferior to the people she was married to. She is now with George Ridgeway, whom she thinks in love with her. George, who lives in London, Gloria takes a business trip to Europe. Pan and Frankie come to New York to see Gloria. Gloria comes one day announcing she has just married him.

WHAT GEORGE WROTE.

Chapter 35.

The most unexpected thing is often the which has been expected and overdue.

For this reason Pandora was surprised when Gloria came into the room and said she was married. Long ago in New York she had thought it would happen when Gloria was free. She wanted it to happen. Later she was sure that George was the man for her. That complicated matters for she was torn between two affections. She wanted Gloria's happiness, which was with Stanley, and she wanted George's happiness, which seemed to be with Gloria.

Then, when they had been in London so long and Stanley had disappeared, she was explained, she was not sure—and here, suddenly, she came in together with Gloria, with eyes that glowed radiantly, and mouth that half trembled while it smiled announced that they had just been married.

So Pan was happy, surprised, and a little dismayed, wondering what George would think. For all this time, she had thought not once of herself but only of the two people she loved so much.

"I don't know what to say—I'm so happy, of course," she managed after an instant. Then she put her arms around Gloria and kissed her.

"You don't look it a bit," Gloria answered, returning her kiss and instantly falling into her usual mood of frivolity. "You look as though you had just lost your last friend."

"Well," Pan said, with smiling finally. "In a way I have. You won't need me any more to look after you."

"Dear me, won't I? Someone will have to relieve Stanley now and then when I get too much for him. He's never learned not to take me seriously. This with an arm around Pan and a hand outstretched to the man who caught and kissed it.

But Gloria's mood changed rapidly, and she was sober again now.

"Where's Frankie?" she asked.

"The difficult thing is to tell him," Stanley, I never heard of taking a child on a honeymoon, but I suspect will be unique and do as at least our fellow travelers won't suspect us of being anything but a staid old married couple."

"Well do nothing of the sort," Stanley answered decidedly. "Frankie's a charming youngster, but he stays with Pan and you are coming away with me for a few weeks."

At this calm contradiction Gloria looked surprised and then began to laugh.

"I can see my future," she exclaimed. "Henceforth I take orders."

No Half-Hearted Piston Stroke with SOLITE A PERFECT GASOLINE

Solite drives the piston the full stroke under power because there are no gaps in the chain of boiling point fractions.

Solite is made by the Burton Process in the great refineries of the Standard Oil Company (Indiana). Every step in the process of its manufacture is under positive control.

Solite is made to give a better service than motorists have had heretofore from a light, volatile gasoline.

The fact that Solite sales are increasing steadily and rapidly indicates that motorists are thoroughly sold and highly pleased with the snappy action their motor gives with Solite in the tank.

It is the best light gasoline you can buy. It costs a little more than its companion, Red Crown. Solite is for the man who is willing to pay for greater volatility and Red Crown is for the man who wants maximum power with economy.

FEW PRESERVES SURVIVE WINTER

Coming of Spring Finds Most Housewives' Shelves Depleted.

Along about this time of year, when the first breezes of spring begin to be felt, housewives take stock of their preserves and in most cases are surprised by the rapidity with which they have diminished. A glass of jelly and jam here and there on the shelf, some of the pineapples, peaches and apples put up last summer, and a few jars of pickles are all that remain. Last year, however, was a banner year for canning, and many housewives whose supplies in past years have given out long before this, find they will probably go through the winter with their own stock.

If home-made preserves last a few more weeks, new spring crops will begin to come in from the south, and in a possible interim, when the shelves are found to be empty, all stores are now offering many excellent brands of jams, jellies and pickles. A few years ago, it did not pay to manufacture these things, for all housewives thought it their duty to stock the cellar shelves, but times have changed.

Summer Vegetables Seen
The chief new things in the local markets this week-end, are in the line of vegetables. All the summer commodities in this class are now being seen, while strawberries from the south are the only fruit, except for what few pineapples the stores are handling.

Many attractive displays are being made to draw the eye of the shopper. Among the newest things in the markets, which wholesalers received in their Friday shipments, are asparagus, which are selling at its high price; radishes and green onions, selling around 10 cents per bunch; tomatoes, which have come down slightly in price since last week; shallots, cauliflower, many of which are now being sold by every grocer in town for around 25 and 35 cents; celery, two large stalks for a quarter in some places; green peppers, two for 15 cents; head lettuce, the prices of which the grocers cannot sing enough, at 10 cents per head.

"I have never sold as less than is now being asked, and has never been better," said one local wholesaler.

Leaf lettuce, at 40 cents per pound, is the same. Cranberries are down to 12 cents per pound, and are excellent. The demand for them is now small. New beets and white turnips are also in this new shipment, while the season of handling all the old line of vegetables—rutabagas, dry onions, Spanish onions, beets, carrots, etc.

In addition to strawberries, at 60-70 cents, the usual winter fruits are seen, all at the same prices that have been asked since fall. Oranges, selling all the way from 20 to 30 cents per dozen, for both Californians and Floridians, grapefruit, bananas, and lemons, come under this heading. Oranges last through the summer, while the grapefruit season is beginning to wane. Bananas and lemons are year-around fruits.

Following the announcement Thursday afternoon that cabbage was taking a recent advance, the price here immediately went up a cent and more. Three cents had been asked, and the prevailing price is now 4 and 4 1/2. While some stores are selling it at a still higher price, it is liable to go even higher, but is not a commodity that is necessary, and people who have been having cabbage at winter record-breaking prices for their townships, can easily do without that vegetable until the price becomes normal. It was lower in the fall than it has ever been known to be. Cabbage is beginning to come in.

Strawberries and pineapples bring their usual high prices, high because they are still "out of season." One store is offering peas and mushrooms and others make attractive bargains on their canned goods. The sugar situation is the same, and although it is said wholesalers received a shipment of the commodity the first of the week, grocers' stocks were so low that it took it all to fill back orders and the scarcity is still prevalent. Cabbage is paying all variety of prices for sugar, while it has gone up only one and two cents here.

Butter is 52-60 cents, slightly higher, and eggs bring 35-45 cents.

True Poetry of the Bible

The 103rd Psalm is widely recognized to be the Song of Songs. The beauty of its language, the significance of its meaning, the humanity, the hope it holds forth, the impressive truth of its every word, the sublimity of the faith of its writer make it one of the noblest passages in all literature. Its description of the Creator's kinship to man is unsurpassable. It is poetry in its most glorified form.

The reading and reciting of this Psalm alone gives back the faith in ourselves that a weary heart has failed to carry. The comfort of the Bible to the understanding and sorrowing is inestimable and to those whose lives are full of joy, the Bible is but hymn after hymn of praise for gladness. It is but a voice in the marvelous verse of the happiness that is within.

The Big Print Red Letter Edition of the Bible which this paper is offering to its readers makes reading the poetry of it like looking at a suitably framed picture. Its beauty is worthy of the best of settings and this edition typifies the best that could be brought together to encompass these mighty songs.

Woman Slayer Now Battles for Life She Sought to End

New York.—A woman's plea—a man's scorn—a single shot—a slumping form—a frantic flight—then bitter remorse—and three unsuccessful attempts at self destruction.

That's the story behind the murder trial of Mrs. Paulette Saludes, dark and pretty, a perfect French type, for the slaying of Oscar Martelliere, broker.

Back still farther is the story of a woman's unrequited love which cost her everything she had in the world, her husband, wealth and happiness; everything but one—her life.

And now that is at stake.

Born in France, just a ninety-bound bundle of French temperance from the tips of her toes to the top of her curly head, she came to America with her husband in search of wealth and happiness.

For a time they found both.

Then Saludes became interested in a lumber company with Martelliere and others including James A. Turley, new law attorney. And Martelliere, according to Turley, became a cloud on the horizon of pretty Paulette's life.

Almost immediately, Turley charges, Martelliere began to betray his associates. He persuaded Saludes to go to Europe to collect accounts owing the company for lumber shipments. With Mrs. Saludes and other members of the company Martelliere was at the pier to wave farewell to Saludes.

Then things began to happen quickly, according to Mrs. Saludes and her attorney.

"After my husband had gone," Mrs. Saludes said in telling her story, "Martelliere came. He blamed Turley for an effort to place the company into bankruptcy. But he alone was responsible. He destroyed my confidence in Turley and for a long time we were not on speaking terms."

Then he carefully planted the seed of distrust in my soul by telling me that I had lost my husband's love. I was distracted. I saw ruin overtaking us.

"Martelliere began making love to me—passionate love—and I—tears welled from her large brown eyes—"I fell. I believed him."

"He took my honor as ruthlessly as he took my property and my soul. When I had nothing more to give he scorned me. In despair I turned to Turley. But Martelliere only laughed—it was a cold, ironical laugh that I shall never forget—and said, 'Go as far as you like.'"

Realizing that her case was hopeless, Mrs. Saludes said she decided to make one last appeal to Martelliere.

She went to his office. Again she heard that cold, cruel laugh and once more felt the sting of his biting scorn.

Mrs. Saludes says she doesn't remember much after that.

"I saw him as a most hideous monster, cruel, calculating, vicious. I tried to kill myself. That's all I remember."

The state says Mrs. Saludes shot Martelliere there in his office.

Turley says she returned to his office and made an unsuccessful attempt to end her woes by leaping from his office window. He says this, she attempted to shoot herself. Police prevented another attempted leap.

Now the state seeks to do what Mrs. Saludes failed to do—take her life—according to the old code of "an eye for an eye."

Stevens Pointers Beat Whitewater

Whitewater.—A smart rally by Stevens Point during the second half gave that normal school a 14 to 11 win over Whitewater normal here Thursday night.

At half time, the local teachers were in the lead by a score of 8 to 6. The Pointers rushed on top shortly after the second half opened and despite every effort of Whitewater, the home team could not overtake them.

For four minutes before the close, the Point had but a one count margin. Whitewater rushed the offense to overtake them but the basket eyes of Coach Ames' boys could not locate the ring.

A large crowd was on edge throughout the close contest.

If I Could Color Snap Shots—

HAVE you ever seen snap shots colorfully tinted? It is quite an idea and makes an ordinary Kodak picture take the appearance of real water colors. Why, I know a man who uses colored snap shots for slides in his lecture work.

If I could, do that sort of thing I would create a demand for my work. I'd advertise in the classified columns of the Janesville Gazette. I'd tell the people of Janesville, Wis., of my accomplishment. I know a Gazette Ad-Taker would help me word my ad so that it would bring maximum results.

TO PAVE FIRST STREET IN SPRING

Call for Bids, March 23 on Last of Aldermanic Jobs.

As the last stretch of several miles of paving to be built under the five year regime of aldermanic government from 1918 to 1923, the two blocks on North First street hill, from North First to North Second streets, will be improved this spring by the laying of asphalt-macadam on a concrete base. Bids have been called for by the board of public works and will be opened Friday, March 23, at 2 p. m.

Paving of these two blocks was authorized at the same time as the 13-block Bluehawk paving job last year but was held over until 1923 due to delay in getting the rains.

Although the council form of government does not give way to city management until the third Tuesday in April, it is not believed the present government will vote any further paving.

The specifications call for 2,550 square yards of asphalt macadam and concrete base, and 226 cubic yards of excavation. Curb and gutter is all to be laid on a prepared ground work, including laterals, has been laid. The successful contractor will be required to start work by May 1 and finish it by July 1.

To Survey Park

With the approach of spring, City Engineer C. V. Adams has called for an extensive topographical survey of Riverside park, the 123-acre tract north of the city, purchased by the city during the winter for municipal use.

This survey is deemed to be necessary before any improvements or changes can be authorized, and will be made as soon as weather conditions permit in order not to delay the fixing up of the park for summer use. So far the only step taken by the council since the purchase of the tract is to cover the danger hall and other buildings by insurance.

Finish River Survey

Mr. Kerch's department has just completed a survey of Rock river to establish permanent boundary lines along both sides from St. Lawrence avenue to Racine street bridge. The river boundaries north of St. Lawrence avenue were established many years ago but there has been no call for extending the lines south until the creation of the new high school required it.

The survey fixes straight boundary lines, allowing for erection of a retaining wall along the new high school property or at any other point. The new lines do not cut off any pieces of the land but the portion of a small strip off the shore line of the Sanborn Tractor company.

The survey, together with an ordinance establishing the boundaries, is expected to be presented to the city council, Monday night.

HOME LIFE MENACED.

Never in the history of the world has the life of the family as a social unit been menaced as it is today. Social unrest, the independence afforded women by opening up almost every profession and every line of industry to them, equal rights with men, all of which are perfectly justifiable, not abused, and women have the health and strength to carry out their inclinations in these matters. But also when a woman is almost at the point of breaking from her household cares and social life, to take on outside duties often means the breaking point, and homes are often neglected for lack of strength or some ailment, develop because of overwork. Women, and ailing women will do well to remember that Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound made from roots and herbs benefits 95 out of every 100 women who try it, and it helps them.

HARDING OPPOSES SPECIAL SESSION

Breathing Spell for Congress and Country Held Need During 1923.

By DAVID LAWRENCE. Copyright, 1923, by Janesville Daily Gazette.

Washington.—Legislative normalcy, something the country has not experienced in ten consecutive years, will be tried for nine months beginning next week. It will be tried—thus as far as predictions can be made at the moment. Whether it will last until December without an extra session being forced in the interval, is uncertain. There are going to be enough problems left over when congress adjourns this week to burrow their way into the political situation and, if possible, even the best laid plans for a rest.

President Harding is a great believer in the psychological value of letting congress pass legislation or debating. For one thing it gives the people in the executive branch of the government a free hand to carry out the laws on the statute books and the policies already formulated without having the club of congressional resolutions, inquiries and investigations hanging overhead.

But the desire for a free hand goes deeper than that. The biggest and at the same time the most pressing political problem before the country today is its economic condition. Unless the people are in a more or less satisfied frame of mind in 1924, the republican administration will have a difficult time persuading the electors to keep the administration in power another four years.

His No Illusions. President Harding himself in his talks with his callers recently has disclosed that he has no illusions about the political situation.

If there is universal employment and farm prices are higher and prosperity is at least discernible, even though the decree of contentment felt in such a boom year as 1919 has not returned, the expectation is that the republicans will have better than an even chance of victory.

Expects to Be Renominated. The president naturally expects to be renominated. He has made the record and is willing to stand on it. The mechanics of the problem of renomination are not difficult with an incumbent president. He usually controls the delegations through his official position and his subordination can have him renominated without the need on his part of lifting a finger or even nodding approval.

Let Congress Stay at Home. Members of congress have gone away many times in the last ten years with the hope of a nine-month rest only to have some development in the world-wide economic situation call them back. Europe is still a danger spot. Only a serious emergency requiring consultation with congress would influence Mr. Harding to summon congress into extra session but once congress is called it can stay as long as it likes and discuss what it pleases. The president believes the country wants congress to let things alone for a while.

Three in Field for Delavan P. O.

Delavan.—The field of likely candidates for the Delavan postoffice, which pays a salary of $3,300 a year, has narrowed down to three men, according to the announcement made by the civil service commission, certifying to the postmaster general those eligible for appointment.

They are Charles W. Boag, Methodist minister and city clerk; Maurice Morrissey, newspaper publisher, acting postmaster and La Follette lieutenant; and William S. Cochrane, Delavan business man and alderman. The names have been submitted for appointment of a permanent successor to Charles M. Tallman, ousted recently on recommendation of postal inspectors.

MAYOR GETS DATA ON PENNSYLVANIA TOWN Centralization of purchasing was one of the biggest things accomplished by the manager plan of government in Carlisle, Pa., according to a booklet received by Mayor T. E. Welsh, which shows the population of the place to be $12,000. Its assessed valuation $5,500,000, and its 1923 budget $106,895. The booklet contains the report of the borough manager to the burgess and members of the council of the Borough of Carlisle. Jasper Alexander is burgess.

NO ARRESTS MADE IN POOL HALL ROBBERY

Although several subjects have been questioned by police, no arrests have been made as yet in connection with the $40 robbery at the Palace billiard hall, West Milwaukee street, early Monday morning. CRIPPLED TOURIST HOME FROM SECOND JAUNT TO FLORIDA

Harry Linn Hardy, crippled young man who called on President Harding as the climax of a long trip last year, has returned from his second trip to Florida and is now at his home, 18 Arch street, having covered nearly 7,000 miles in a touring car since last October.

He did odd jobs of sign painting and lettering during his trip south, arriving in Palm Beach just as winter was beginning in the north. He visited Miami and several other cities in Florida, patronizing the tourist camps and sleeping in his car.

Returning home to take medical treatment, Hardy made good time despite the condition of the roads. It took him less than two days to make the 360-mile leg from Indianapolis to Janesville. He reported the weather unusually cold when he came through Louisville, Ky.

Entirely without the use of his legs, Mr. Hardy has rigged up a set of levers with which he can operate his motor car with his hands with perfect control over the machine.
